

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

CAROLYN SCHAUPP, et al.,

No. 1:20-cv-01221-DAD-BAM

Plaintiffs,

v.

COUNTY OF STANISLAUS, et al.,

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE WHY ACTION
SHOULD NOT BE DISMISSED FOR LACK OF SUBJECT-MATTER JURISDICTION

Defendants.

On August 28, 2020, plaintiffs Carolyn Schaupp and Carolyn Schaupp, Sr. (collectively, “plaintiffs”¹) commenced this action against defendants County of Stanislaus; the Stanislaus County Superior Court; Frank Sousa; Edward Izzo; and multiple other individuals who are apparently associated with the Stanislaus County. (Doc. No. 1.) The complaint—which alleges claims under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, Monell v. Department of Social Services of City of New York, 436

¹ The complaint alleges that plaintiff Schaupp intends to represent her minor children—D.S., L.S., and P.I.—in this action. (Compl. at ¶¶ 8–10.) The Ninth Circuit has held that “a non-attorney parent must be represented by counsel in bringing an action on behalf of his or her child. The choice to appear pro se is not a true choice for minors who under state law cannot determine their own legal actions.” Johns v. Cty. of San Diego, 114 F.3d 874, 876 (9th Cir. 1997) (internal citation omitted). Accordingly, the court will address the claims as being brought by only plaintiffs Schaupp and Schaupp, Sr. See Laycock v. Cty. of Fresno, No. 1:18-cv-01263-LJO-SAB, 2018 WL 4998136, at *2 (E.D. Cal. Oct. 15, 2018) (“Plaintiff cannot bring this action to assert the rights of his children without retaining counsel. The Court shall therefore only consider the claims raised in this action as they pertain to Plaintiff.”).

1 U.S. 658 (1978), and several state law causes of action—states that this court has subject matter
 2 jurisdiction over this action pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1331. (Id. at 3.) The allegations of the
 3 complaint appear, however, to amount to a challenge to orders issued by the Stanislaus County
 4 Superior Court that removed plaintiff Schaupp’s children from her care. (See id. at ¶¶ 33–43.)

5 “Federal courts are courts of limited jurisdiction.” Kokkonen v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of 6 Am., 511 U.S. 375, 377 (1994). “[S]ubject matter jurisdiction of the district court is not a
 7 waivable matter and may be raised at anytime by one of the parties, by motion or in the 8 responsive pleadings, or sua sponte by the trial or reviewing court.” Emrich v. Touche Ross &
 9 Co., 846 F.2d 1190, 1194 n.2 (9th Cir. 1988); see also Henderson ex rel. Henderson v. Shinseki, 10 562 U.S. 428, 434–35 (2011) (noting objections to subject matter jurisdiction may be raised post-11 trial). “It is to be presumed that a cause lies outside this limited jurisdiction, and the burden of 12 establishing the contrary rests upon the party asserting jurisdiction.” Kokkonen, 511 U.S. at 377
 13 (internal citation omitted).

14 As one judge of this court has recently observed under similar circumstances:

15 Although plaintiff’s complaint is cast in terms of federal law
 16 violations, it is clear from the content of the complaint and the 17 remedies sought . . . that he is essentially contesting the state court
 18 judgment regarding his child support and custody obligations. This 19 amounts to a de facto appeal of the state court judgment. See Cooper
v. Ramos, 704 F.3d 772, 777–78 (9th Cir. 2012) (“To determine whether an action functions as a de facto appeal, we pay close attention to the relief sought by the federal-court plaintiff.”). The court does not have jurisdiction to hear such a case.

20 The Rooker-Feldman doctrine prohibits federal district courts from 21 hearing cases “brought by state-court losers complaining of injuries
 22 caused by state-court judgments rendered before the district court
 23 proceedings commenced and inviting district court review and 24 rejection of those judgments.” Exxon Mobil Corp. v. Saudi Basic Indus. Corp., 544 U.S. 280, 284 (2005). To determine if the Rooker-
Feldman doctrine bars a case a court must first determine if the 25 federal action contains a forbidden de facto appeal of a state court
 26 judicial decision. Noel v. Hall, 341 F.3d 1148, 1156 (9th Cir. 2003).
 27 If it does not, “the Rooker-Feldman inquiry ends.” Bell v. City of Boise, 709 F.3d 890, 897 (9th Cir. 2013). If a court determines that 28 the action is a “forbidden de facto appeal,” however, the court cannot hear the de facto appeal portion of the case and, [a]s part of that refusal, it must also refuse to decide any issue raised in the suit that is ‘inextricably intertwined’ with an issue resolved by the state court in its judicial decision.” Noel, 341 F.3d at 1158; see also Bell, 709 F.3d at 897 (“The ‘inextricably intertwined’ language from Feldman

1 is not a test to determine whether a claim is a de facto appeal, but is
2 rather a second and distinct step in the Rooker-Feldman analysis.”).
3 A complaint is a “de facto appeal” of a state court decision where the 4 plaintiff “complains of a legal wrong allegedly committed by the 5 state court, and seeks relief from the judgment of that court.” Noel,
6 341 F.3d at 1163.

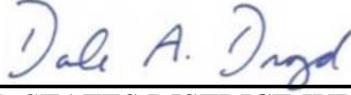

7 In seeking a remedy by which this court invalidates a state court
8 decision and amends the state court record, plaintiff is clearly asking 9 this court to “review the final determinations of a state court in 10 judicial proceedings,” which is at the core of Rooker-Feldman’s
11 prohibition. In re Gruntz, 202 F.3d 1074, 1079 (9th Cir. 2000).
12 Requests to vacate a family court order and child support debt are 13 generally considered de facto appeals. Riley v. Knowles, No. 1:16-
14 CV-0057-JLT, 2016 WL 259336, at *3 (E.D. Cal. Jan. 21, 2016).
15 Indeed, requests to the federal courts to reverse the outcomes of 16 family law issues, such as divorce proceedings or child custody
17 determinations, are generally treated as de facto appeals barred by 18 Rooker-Feldman. See Moore v. County of Butte, 547 Fed. Appx.
19 826, 829 (9th Cir. 2013). Accordingly, plaintiff’s action constitutes 20 a “forbidden de facto appeal” and the court lacks subject matter jurisdiction to hear the case.

21 Davis v. California Department of Child Services, No. 2:20-cv-01393 TLN AC PS, 2020 WL
22 5039243, at *2 (E.D. Cal. Aug. 26, 2020); see also Ankenbrandt v. Richards, 504 U.S. 689, 702–
23 04 (1992) (holding that the domestic relations exception to federal subject matter jurisdiction 24 “divests the federal courts of power to issue divorce, alimony and child custody decrees”);
25 Clemons v. McGlynn, No. 2:18-cv-2463-TLN-EFB PS, 2019 WL 4747646, at *2 (E.D. Cal. Sept.
26 30, 2019) (“Because the core issue in this action concerns matters relating to child custody, this 27 court lacks subject matter jurisdiction.”), findings and recommendations adopted, 2019 WL
28 5960103 (E.D. Cal. Nov. 13, 2019).

29 Accordingly, plaintiffs are hereby directed to show cause within fourteen (14) days of 30 service of this order as to why this matter should not be dismissed for lack of subject matter
31 jurisdiction.

32 IT IS SO ORDERED.
